

Name	Kotone Watanabe
Country	Japan (Oki-Dozen High School)
Title	Support education for developing countries in Asia
Objective	To help the learning of children with some books and finally to help them to establish a library at their school
Outline	I thought that I wanted to do the activity that solved a world problem as for as a high school student could act, with my project supporters. Then, we thought that somebody could solve a world problem by performing the education to children. In addition, children can know the Japanese culture because we send Japanese books. We decided to send books to the elementary which the person found because there was the person who found the elementary school in Bangladesh.
Actions taken & result	First, we collected picture books from the local library and our home, and so on. Second, Japanese picture books were translated into English. And, there were translated into Bengali that is main language in Bangladesh. We requested that task of other people. We sent five picture books which were written in three languages to the elementary school in Bangladesh. We received a mail from the elementary school. Contents of it are "This is so beautiful! Many many thanks for your students." This project was introduced on the homepage of my school. We are going to send another five books in few days. We will continue carrying out the project.

Kotone and her teammates

Five picture books