First, I would like to say that Thailand is the country that located almost at the central of Southeast Asia. Therefore, Thailand became a very dynamic country which has different cultures. It is because the people who live here are so diverse and differences such as Chinese, Indian, Malaysian, Lao, and also Japanese. Thus, we can say that Thailand is the Asian melting pot.

From a different cultures that have combined into one culture. It developed a new culture that is the identity of my country "Thailand". I lived in Thailand for 15 years. I have seen a lot of beautiful Thai culture and I think it is great to not only share it with our neighbor countries and other countries, but also exchange it. My country has lots of cultures such as Songkran day, Loy Kratong day and much more. These cultures have attracted a lot of tourists to visit Thailand. It means that a lot of people are interesting in our culture. In the future, Thailand need to present itself as the country that has the identity of a unique cultural, in my opinion.

Since, a lot of countries are interesting in our culture, we will share and exchange it with all Asian countries. These will make the new combination of diverse cultures that bring Asian people closer together. This will increase Asian economy growth from business, tourism and others activities. Since, culture has a strong influence to people belief and value. I believe that exchanging the culture will increase a power to create the new innovative things.

Asia is the oldest and the biggest continent that have a long time of history and culture. The knowledge and experience that have been collected should transform to the new culture that make us to become one. In the future Asia will be one of the continents that have variety of history, culture and population but one dream and direction. In addition, we should play global roles by share the history, culture, art, science, and technology with other continents such as medical knowledge and food technology. With good cooperation, we can make the new food and medical technology that create a better life for all.

Since, very country has its own culture identity which can create the new innovation that can create growth in the future. Sharing and exchange our culture, knowledge, and experience with the other countries, finally, it will help us creating the new era of the technology and writing the world history together.
